SEANNOVATION

Euromaritime innovation area

The maritime economy is back in force in the city of Marseille with the Euromaritime exhibition which will open its doors from 1st to 3rd February 2022 at Parc Chanot in Marseille. Innovation will be at the heart of this Blue Growth exhibition.

Euromaritime is launching a call for applications to select the start-ups that will exhibit in the SEAnnovation space.

Launched for the first time at the 2020 edition of the exhibition, the SEAnnovation space is designed to bring together fifteen or so French and foreign start-ups interested in maritime innovation. The objective is ambitious: to select the most innovative young companies and welcome them to the heart of maritime industries, focusing on sectors in shipbuilding and ship repair, maritime transport, port and new environmental and energy technologies.

New talents will be able to showcase their know-how and technological innovations, speak at the pitch area and meet industrialists, investors, institutions and business providers during targeted and specialised business meetings.

The SEAnnovation space will also organise key note speeches and round tables to punctuate the three days of the exhibition.

Euromaritime's SEAnnovation space is an excellent gateway for young entrepreneurs into the maritime industry and towards all French, European and Mediterranean players involved in the maritime sector.

To qualify for SEAnnovation, start-ups will need to propose new innovative products or services likely to concern all areas of the maritime industry and blue growth: shipbuilding and ship repair activities, port activities, maritime and river transport and future maritime technologies (environment, energy, bioresources, protection and conservation).

The call for application will close on 5th October
